

June 14, 2005

Dear Synergy GPS Customers,

Motorola has sold its GPS Products group to SiRF Technologies. Synergy Systems was unaware of this transaction until the attached press release was received June 2, 2005. On June 7th, 2005 we received a letter from Motorola stating that as result of the sale, Motorola has announced end of life (EOL) of all its GPS Products (i.e. modules, FS Oncore, antennas etc.). We have been conversing with both Motorola and SiRF to seek additional clarity for our customers, and below are the essentials:

- Motorola is offering the opportunity to place last-time-buy orders, which must be received at Synergy Systems by July 8, 2005. Orders are subject to acceptance by Motorola (we are not clear in what case they would refuse the order).
- Deliveries can be scheduled through December 2005. (Although Motorola has reserved the right to ship as soon as the product is available. Should this situation arise, Synergy will pass through the date changes).
- Last-time-buy orders are non-cancelable and non-returnable.
- Synergy recommends earliest scheduled delivery dates, as often in EOL situations, there are not enough components to meet everyone's needs.

While these events are very unfortunate and untimely, we are committed to support our customers by providing alternate solutions of equal or better value.

We have GPS solutions available from Sony, in addition to many antenna solutions manufactured to our specifications, in stock, ready to go!

Please contact our office at +1-858-566-0666 for further assistance, or refer to our web site, www.synergy-gps.com for up-to-date information.